Representative Judy Biggert, a lifelong Illinois resident, combines a wealth of experience as a legislator, lawyer, community leader, and small business owner to serve the suburban Chicago residents of Illinois' 13th District in the U.S. House of Representatives.

A graduate of Stanford University and Northwestern University School of Law, Representative Biggert began her legal career as clerk to the Honorable Luther M. Swygert, U.S. Court of Appeals for the 7th Circuit. Representative Biggert also ran a private law practice specializing in real estate, estate planning and probate law, while raising her four children.

In 1992, Representative Biggert began her legislative career when she was elected to the Illinois House of Representatives to serve the newly created 81st District. Representative Biggert is a member of the American Bar Association, the Illinois State Bar Association, the DuPage Bar Association and the DuPage Association of Women Lawyers.

As an active member of Congress, Representative Biggert serves on the Committee on Financial Services, the Committee on Education, the Committee on Labor, Science and Technology and six subcommittees including: the Education and Labor Subcommittee on Early Childhood, Elementary, and Secondary Education; the Education and Labor Subcommittee on Higher Education, Lifelong Learning, and Competitiveness; the Financial Services Subcommittee on Financial Institutions and Consumer Credit; the Science and Technology Subcommittee on Energy and Environment; and the Science and Technology Subcommittee on Technology and Innovation.

Representative Biggert also serves as Ranking Member of the House Financial Services Subcommittee on Housing and Community Development.

Representative Biggert resides in Hinsdale, Illinois with her husband Rody. She is the proud mother of four children: Courtney Caverly, Alison Cabot, Rody Biggert, and Adrienne Morrell, as well as being grandmother to six grandchildren: Martin Bray, Gillian and Grant Patterson Caverly, and John Henry, Matthew and Ethan Cabot.
